Supported by

FOUR DAYS. OVER 200 MAKERS AND GALLERIES.

HANDMADE AT KEW The International Contemporary Craft Event, organised by Handmade in Britain, launches at the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, from 8-11 October 2015.

Shop contemporary craft at Kew

This autumn, enjoy the delights of the world's most famous botanic garden while browsing, buying or commissioning work directly from a handpicked selection of artists and makers in this innovative new craft fair, Handmade at Kew. From 8-11 October, work by over 200 international makers and galleries will embrace a range of disciplines including ceramics, glass, furniture, textiles, metalwork, wood, sculpture and jewellery.

Handmade at Kew is a very special chance to invest in beautiful, unique products and unearth the stories, inspirations and processes behind the exquisite work of the world's most talented craftspeople. Housed in an elegant pavilion next to Kew Palace, your ticket will not only give you access to the show but also to the whole of Kew Gardens.

One ticket allows access to the show and the whole of Kew Gardens, so make a day of it and explore!
